

HARTHILL MORRIS

Morris dancing from the most southerly village in Yorkshire

We are a mixed morris dancing side from Harthill, the most southerly village in Yorkshire, located in the metropolitan borough of Rotherham between Sheffield and Worksop. Formed in 1976, we mainly perform dances from the Cotswold tradition, although have also danced in others including North-West, Border and Longsword. During the summer months we dance out on Thursday evenings at local pubs in South Yorkshire, North-East Derbyshire and North Lincolnshire, as well as appearing at various events around the country throughout the year. In the winter we practice at Harthill Village Hall before retiring for a post-practice-pint at local pub The Beehive.

Fancy giving morris dancing a go? We'd love for you to join us! Come chat to one of us, get in touch via the details overleaf, or pop along to a practice and you'll be made most welcome.
